

LETTERS TO MY BROKER

P.S. What do you think of the market?

By A. Kustomer and Clem Chambers

TIMELESS ADVICE FROM THE 1920'S

Enter the "Roaring Twenties!", where flappers draw long drags from their cigarettes discussing the latest motion picture and music pours out of night clubs into alleyways, and meet Joe – a hapless trader striving to make a killing from his investments.

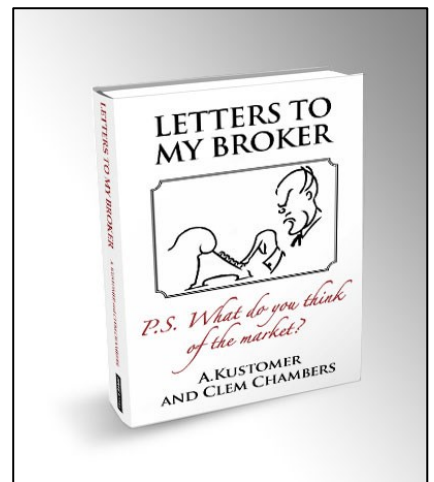

Like many, Joe needs a bit of help. In a series of letters to his broker, Joe attempts in vain to make his fortune.

In Letters to My Broker: P.S. What Do You Think of the Market?, co-authors, A. Kustomer and Clem Chambers have created a dynamically rich satire that makes you laugh and helps you earn.

Revived ninety years after original publication the authors have joined forces across the decades to create a new, illustrated edition for the 21st century.

"This is a book to laugh with and to learn from. I decided to annotate it and bring a perspective to the text while adding various insights to focus in on crucial issues," explains Clem, who adds a commentary after each of A. Kustomer's original 1920's letters to explain the rights and wrongs of Joe's actions before applying them to today's market.

Along with Clem's annotations, the book contains new illustrations by David Pinnell, which expertly capture Joe's frustrations and display the same humour from the pages.
